Client: Lakeside Company
System: Purchasing and Cash Disbursement Cycle
Date:
Prepared by: John Ligaya

Purchase and Cash Disbursement

When inventory items appear to be in low-level, Edward Thomas prepares a purchase requisition to replace Lakeside's depleted stocks. All merchandise were acquired virtually instant from Cyprus Products. The completed requisition includes the quantity being ordered as well as a description of the needed items. This document is then forwarded to Rogers for final review. Whenever the president disagrees or question any part of the purchase, he discusses his concerns with Thomas. If they decide to make a change, the original requisition is voided and a new one is completed. After approval, Rogers routes one copy of the purchase requisition to the Treasurer, a second goes to the Controller, and the final copy is returned to Thomas. The original document serves as a purchase order and is mailed to Cyprus.

Periodically, Thomas must also special-order merchandise from Cyprus. Customer requests are often received for inventory that is not in stock in the Lakeside warehouse. When Thomas receives notice that specific goods are needed, a purchase requisition is immediately prepared and forwarded to Rogers for approval.

When shipments arrive at Lakeside, the members of the inventory department unload the merchandise and inspect each item for damage. A receiving report is prepared, indicating the identity, quantity, and condition of the goods. One copy of this document goes to the Treasurer's Office or while another is routed to the Controller's Division, when the inventory purchaser journal is updated. Later, when the vendor invoice arrives from Cyprus, it is stamped by Lakeside so that document numbers and individual verifications can be marked directly on the form. This invoice is matched by the Treasurer's Office with the purchase requisition and the Superannuation requisition agreement. The prices on the invoice are compared to a master price list and each invoice is extended and footed to establish mathematical accuracy. If all information is proper, the three documents are stapled together and placed in a date date file. On this date, the forms are removed and a check is prepared for the appropriate amount after reducing the balance for any cash discounts being offered. The Treasurer writes "PAID" across the invoice and indicates the check number.
